In today's startup environment, it isn't enough to build a cool product using Linux. You must make a sustainable, meaningful, and elegant product using Linux. Tenrehte designs and manufactures electronics that save energy. From winning a best of CES award for their first prototype, to saving massive amounts of electricity in global data centers, Tenrehte has been and will remain an open-source and sustainable company. Audience is anyone interested in learning about product development using Linux products, IOT products, and sustainable design.
